Types of transportation in bulk

Flexitank is a flexible container which is used for the transportation and storage of liquid food, loose and bulk cargoes. Transportation is carried out by the 20ft dry cargo container, resulting in savings, since only the delivery costs are paid.

The tank-container is a container consisting of a frame and a tank of 26-35m³.

Our tank vehicles of the European production are made of special food stainless steel. All the tanks have thermal insulation that allows maintaining the desired temperature, and if necessary, you may heat or cool the cargo during transportation.

The multibox is a plastic container, intended for safe transportation and storage of liquids.
